APPROPRIATION BILL IS JAMMED THROUGH THE CITY COUNCIL

tentative draft of the appropriation bill to the Council as drawn up by the finance committee. On motion of Councilman Raynes moved that the council go into executive session as a committee as a whole. The motion was passed, Councilman Northwick being called to the chair.

One hour and twenty minutes later, at 8:40 p. m., the Council was again called to order.

Councilman Hett offered the following bill, moving that it pass its first reading by its title.

DON'T BE BILIOUS, HEADACHY, SICK OR CONSTIPATED

Enjoy life! Live your liver
feel great.

Wake up with head clear,

Take one or two Cascarets tonight and enjoy the pleasant, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up feeling grand, your head will be clear, your tongue clean, breath sweet, stomach regulated and your liver and thirty feet of bowels active. Get a box at any drug store now and get straightened up by morning. Stop the headache, biliousness, bad colic and bad days. Feel fit and ready for work or play. Cascarets do not gripe, sicken or inconvenience you the next day like salts, pills or calomel. They're fine!

Mothers should give a whole Cascaret anytime to cross, sick, bilious or feverish children because it will act thoroughly and can not injure.

propriated shall be used exclusively for the purposes stated, and no transfer therefrom shall be made except by the resolution of the city council and no expenditures shall be made by any department in excess of funds available under penalty of chapter 212, section 22, laws of 1905.

Councilman Smart offered objections stating that he had not had sufficient time to consider it.

Councilman Wood said, "I am in no position to vote on this bill, and I ask that it be laid over until the next meeting. The finance committee has been at work on it for eight weeks and I feel that I need more time in order to vote intelligently on it. We have had a little over an hour, only. I asked three days ago for a copy of the bill and received a copy of it this noon. The finance committee has had eight weeks with it and in the committee meeting a few minutes ago in this chamber they find errors in it. They had neglected part of the police department appropriation. There may be other errors and we cannot, in eight hours be expected to do what the committee has done in eight weeks."

The councilman was informed from the chair that this was the first year that the councilman had had a copy of the bill.

Councilman Smart object to this statement. He said, "I have been a member of this council for four years and have always had a copy of the appropriation bill."

"After the bill was passed, perhaps, but not before," the chair stated.

"No," said Councilman Smart. "The members of the council have had a copy of the bill before it was passed for the four years that I have been a member of the council."

Councilman Wood said, "I don't wish to cast any reflections on the finance committee, nor do I wish to have the members think that I am not reasonably intelligent, but I would like more time. I don't intend to get down on my knees to beg for this time but our duty to the citizens of this city demands the time."

Councilman Hett said, "Any member with sense will know that the bill is all right. The finance committee has spent eight weeks on it and have gone into it thoroughly. The bill is all right. There is no need of waiting and the assessors down stairs are waiting for it so as to fix the tax rate. They have said that they wanted it right away."

Finance committee was one of (experience. The present committee is green and there have been errors found in this bill tonight. I wish to go on record as opposed to the passing of the bill at this time."

Councilman Hett called for a vote on the motion to pass the resolution on its first reading. The resolution passed, Councilmen Northwick, Matthews, Raynes, Hett, Paterson and Sullivan voting in the affirmative; Councilmen Berry, Smart and Wood in the negative.

Has Authority Over the Newspapers

At this point, after the roll call Councilman Matthews said: "I do not wish to be guilty of any unfairness to the citizens and I am willing to allow this bill to go over for another meeting if the newspapers do not publish anything about this meeting. I am willing to give my services to the members of the council in explaining any point in the bill that they do not understand. But this must not be published. The Mayor has authority over the newspapers and can stop it."

This was passed with no comment except a remark that the Mayor had any such authority.

Councilman Smart said, "We should not hurry about this matter; there is no need of rushing it. The assessors are not in a hurry to have it and all I am asking for is a week to study the bill. I again wish to go on record as opposed to its passage at this meeting."

Councilman Raynes moved that the rules be so far suspended as to allow the passing of the bill at this meeting. On the roll call the motion passed.

Councilman Northwick, Matthews, Raynes, Hett, Paterson, Sullivan, voting in the affirmative; Councilmen Berry, Smart and Wood voting against it.

On motion of Councilman Hett the resolution passed its second reading, the roll call being the same as in the previous question.

Councilman Hett moved that the bill pass to be engrossed. The motion was passed on roll call with no changes.

Water Bill Twisted

Councilman Northwick presented the water bill for passing, calling for an approximate appropriation of $37,233.00. Councilman Matthews asked one or two questions about the bill which were answered. Councilman Wood said, "It is plainly seen that even some of the members of the finance committee are unfamiliar with this bill and although I will bow to the authority of the council, I do not think that this bill should be passed tonight. I am not at all familiar with it."

Councilman Smart offered a motion to lay it on the table until the next meeting. On a roll call the motion was lost, four to five, the vote as follows: Affirmative, Councilmen Berry, Paterson, Smart and Wood; negative, Councilmen Northwick, Matthews, Raynes, Hett and Sullivan.

The question of $7,700.00, which should have been paid by the water department into the sinking fund last year, in addition to the amount due this year, bringing the total amount to $15,700, was introduced. The question was open to discussion. Councilmen Smart and Wood opposing passage.

Councilman Hett offered a motion that the bill pass its first reading. The motion was passed, Councilmen Northwick, Raynes, Matthews, Hett and Sullivan voting yes; Councilmen Berry, Paterson, Smart and Wood, no.

Councilman Raynes offered a motion to so far suspend the rules as to allow the passage of the resolution at this meeting. The motion passed, the vote again being five to four in favor of the motion.

Councilman Raynes moved that the bill pass its second reading. At this point Councilman Matthews asked for a recess of five minutes as he thought he had found an error in the total of the proposed appropriation, and he wished to find out if it was right.

Councilman Wood said, "Passing this bill tonight is not fair to the citizens of Portsmouth who we are representing in this council. The members of the council do not know about this bill. We need more time on it. When one of the leading lights who helped frame the bill is not sure that it is right, we have no right to jam it through at this meeting."

Councilman Smart offered an amendment that the bill be laid on the table. The chair refused to entertain the motion. Councilman Matthews stated that he was willing to allow the original motion to be withdrawn and that it not be acted upon at this meeting. Councilman Smart again offered his motion that the bill be laid until the next meeting. The chair ruled the motion out of order as there was a motion before the house. Councilman Smart appeared from the ruling of the chair, contending that a motion to table a measure had precedence over any motion. On consultation the chair admitted its error. The motion was passed, Councilman Sullivan voting in the negative.

Instruction was accepted and placed on file on motion of Councilman Sullivan.

The annual report of the auditor was accepted and placed on file on motion of Councilman Wood.

City Solicitor Waldron presented a communication from a Boston attorney which informed him that the city of Portsmouth had been named as the beneficiary of a sum of $5000 for scholarship fund for a boy's high school and a similar amount for the same purpose for a girl's high school in the will of the late Mrs. James T. Fields of Manchester, Mass. Mr. Waldron stated that he had been in consultation with the Boston attorney and that it would be necessary that the filing of the will be given before the fund could be transferred, as this city has no schools as those mentioned in the will. The council voted to accept the funds and delegated Mr. Waldron to be present at the court hearing to give such notice and information to the court as would be required.

On motions offered by Councilman Hett the meeting adjourned to Thursday evening, March 30.

WITH THE SPORTS

Jess Willard and Frank Moran impatiently await the hour of the going that will send them into their ten round battle Saturday night in Madison Square Garden.

Both men are trained to the minute. Neither man can afford a defeat with "bit of confidence." Four weeks of training for both men has hardened their bodies until they seem able to resist onslaughts of whiplash. Yet each man is sure that he will knock out the other.

The rival ring warriors are like bull dogs straining at the leash. They can hardly wait until the battle begins. Each wants to demonstrate to his followers that he is unquestionably the greatest ring man of the present era.

Moran, despite the fact that he is spotting Willard half a hundred in weight and half a foot in height and reach is sure that he can do what no other man ever accomplished—score a knockout over Willard.

The huge champion on the other hand, realizes that he must cover the "Missourians" in this battle. There are thousands of ring followers who have spotted him and have called him the accidental champion. They often have said that Willard will be beaten by the first good man he meets. Willard therefore wants to win a decisive victory so as to prove to the world at large that he is a real champion, the king of the pugilistic kings.

The betting is three to one that there will not be a knockout—that the fight will go the scheduled ten rounds. Yet each man will fight with that one purpose in mind—to send his foe down for the full count.

Willard wants to score a complete victory so as to give him greater prestige, while Moran knows that he cannot ascend to the throne by any other route than by a Morpheus punch.

Both men are right handed punchers and each packs a deadly wallop in the parlor line. But neither has a left hand that seems dangerous. If there should be a knockout, the chances are that a right hand swing will produce it.

The crowd will be a record breaker or as far as New York state is concerned both in attendance and in receipts, as far as closed arenas are concerned. The crowd will number beyond 12,000 which is larger than any that has attended any recent bout in the state except the McFarland-Gibbons fight which was staged out in the open last summer.

The receipts, according to the promoters have gone close to the $150,000 mark which exceeds any New York "gate" in the memory of the oldest inhabitants.

Many of the choice seats found their way into the hands of speculators and later arrivals among the fans have paid double and treble the marked prices for posthumors.

The crowd mainly will be composed of New Yorkers, but around the ring-side and scattered through the balconies and the rear part of the floor will be lovers of the pugilistic game from all parts of the United States. It was estimated that at least 2500 of the ticket holders have come from out of the city.

Less betting has been done on the outcome of tonight's battle than any in which a champion heavyweight has figured. The odds which ranged from ten to eight, to ten to six earlier in the week, dropped to two to one in favor of Willard today; but there was not much money offered and little of it taken. There odds apply to Willard winning either by a knockout or in the consensus of opinion among the New York sport writers.

VERDUN ATTACK SHIFTED TO THE EASTERN SIDE

Violent Bombardments Opened on French Positions by the German Forces on Metz Side of Defenses.—French Succeed in Holding Enemy.

London, March 23.—Paris today, announces that the Germans have opened a violent bombardment of the French positions "east of the Meuse" but does not specify just where, though when last couched in similar language it meant next east of Verdun near Vaux and Damoupy. This might indicate that the Germans intend to return to their attacks on this section, which has been the scene of some of the most determined fighting of the war. Here they have approached nearest to the heart of the fortress. Nivelle's offensive continues with undiminished vigor on a front of more than a hundred miles. Taking advantage of the German re-occupation at Verdun, the Russian staff it is said, decided "to anticipate any plans the Germans might be making for an offensive in the Dvinsk region by a series of manoeuvres which, if successful, would make it not only impossible for them to institute the advance they apparently intended, but would force them out of the positions they now hold." The position of the German forces in the northern section takes the form of an arc with the army before Dvinsk occupying the point in the arc furthest extended into Russian territory. This alignment makes the German position particularly susceptible to flanking attacks north and south of Dvinsk. These, as officially announced, already have begun. In the region of Lake Narocz south of Dvinsk, the Russians advanced along a ten-mile front, threatening the Vilna railroad and German communications between this point and Dvinsk. It is unofficially reported that this movement along the southern flank of the German Dvinsk position was accompanied by manoeuvres of the same nature against the northern German flank in the neighborhood of Friedland. The effect of these two attacks if successfully executed, would be to squeeze the Germans from their extended position before Dvinsk and convert the present arc into a straight line from Friedland to Sventitskoy. The continued assaults of the Russians on the eastern front have not shaken the German lines in the slightest; the Berlin War Office declares. Repeated attacks have been made on both sides of the Dvinsk salient position, strong forces being employed, but these are asserted to have resulted in no success whatever. The violent Russian assaults near Postavy have not been renewed. It is the view of the German press also that the progress made yesterday near Avocourt, the French line between Belthcourt and Malancourt is now menaced and the French positions threatened from the east by the German successes in the region of Dead Man's Hill, and from the west as a result of the German victory in the wooded region north east of Avocourt.

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "TIZ."

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-pinched, aching, burning, corn-piercing, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get, how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller, if you desire.

able to prove their identity. Other Americans have been expelled from Italy. Special attention was drawn to the case of Harry Nightingale, who was denounced by the military authorities and whose expulsion was decreed and insisted upon, despite the efforts of the American ambassador to have it revoked.

Daron Sonnino promised that all the cases mentioned by the ambassador would be examined again in the most friendly spirit, as Italy rejoices in the continuance of the best relations with the United States.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., March 23.—If you would like to have your bread turn out right every time, with the regularity that it displays for the professional baker, be sure that your dough has a temperature of 70-80 degrees Fahrenheit. This is the advice of Miss Frieda Reiner, assistant professor of Home Economics here.

Miss Reiner explains that housewives sometimes complain that they cannot make good bread in winter, but have no trouble in summer time. This she says is in most cases due to the fact that the kitchen temperature gets too low. On the other hand, it must not get too high. Some authorities assert that dough will make good bread when mixed at temperatures as high as 95 degrees; but Miss Reiner says this heat is likely to make the bread sour. The ideal temperature is 70-80 degrees, and in the modern steam heated house this degree of warmth is easily maintained. In the kitchen of the farmhouse a stationary temperature presents more difficulties, but if the woman who is learning to make bread will use a thermometer she will be forearmed and her failures will be surprisingly few.

Philip B. Badger, a sophomore from Portsmouth has been elected captain of next year's basketball team. He has been prominent in athletics but made the varsity basketball team for the first time this year. His work has been hard and consistent and the vote for him was unanimous. Mr. Badger is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

The executive committee of the athletic association has awarded the "N. H." for basketball to the following: Capt. D. H. Russell of Keene; H. L. Brown and H. A. Steele of Manchester; E. J. Sanborn of Sanbornville; P. B. Badger of Portsmouth; R. F. Cahalane of Stamford, Conn.; and Manager W. T. Tapley of Beverly, Mass.

A Good Cook Knows Her Fuel

Do you realize that your oil cook-stove acts very differently with different grades of kerosene? If you want the cleanest, hottest flame with complete freedom from smoke and odor, you should be careful about what goes into the reservoir of your oil stove.

All Kerosene is not alike by any means. And the good kind is enough better to be decidedly worth asking for.

Say "Socony" (So-CO-ny), to the grocer's boy when he comes to take your oil-can. In that way you can be sure of getting reliable fuel—Socony Kerosene Oil, which is the Standard Oil Company of New York's best kerosene.

Socony Kerosene is absolutely clean and clear-burning whenever and wherever you buy it. It does not make wick crust—you do not need to clean the burners so often and you get a bigger money's worth of heat.

Look for the Socony sign in the windows of groceries, hardware and general stores everywhere which carry Socony Kerosene Oil. It is the sign of quality and a reliable dealer.

We recommend the following oil burning devices as the best of their kind: New Perfection Oil Cook-stoves and Water Heaters, Perfection Smokeless Oil Heaters, Rayo Lamps and Lanterns.

LESS THAN 300,000 ACRES OF NATIONAL FOREST BURNED IN 1915.

Washington, March 23.—Forest fires burned over not quite 300,000 acres of National Forest land in 1915, according to official reports just compiled, or less than two acres per thousand. Out of a total of 6,324 fires, 346, or 5 1-2 per cent, did damage to the amount of 2100 or more.

The timber loss was 156,000,000 board feet, valued at $150,000,000. Although the season was regarded as one of unusual exposure, owing to delayed fall rains, the loss was materially below the average of the last five years. Over 87 per cent of this loss occurred in the states of Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, while more than 72 per cent was in Oregon alone. Besides the timber loss, fires destroyed reproduction, or young tree growth, of an estimated value of $169,000, and $340 worth of forage. The loss per acre in 1915 was $20.41, which is $11.03 less than the five-year average, while the cost of fighting each fire was $20.83 less.

Lightning fires as the chief cause of forest fires in 1915, as it does in the average year. Twenty-eight and a half per cent of the fires were due to lightning. Campers caused 13 per cent, which is 2 1-2 per cent higher than the average. Eleven per cent were caused by brush burning. Nearly 11 per cent were of incendiary origin. Railroads were responsible for nearly 9 per cent of the fires in 1915, as against 14 1-2 per cent due to this cause in the average year. The causes of over 15 per cent were unknown. Lumbering operations caused less than 2 per cent.

BIG PRIZE OFFERED TO BOYS IN CORN CONTEST.

To show their appreciation of and to encourage interest in the Boys' Agricultural Club Work, the New Hampshire Agricultural Breeders' Club will give a pure bred Ayreshire bull calf to the boy who wins the field corn contest in each of the ten counties of New Hampshire. The winning boy will receive the calf with registration papers and transportation charges paid.

The field corn contest is conducted by the Extension Service of New Hampshire College as one of the projects of the agricultural club work in which instruction and guidance is offered. Any boy under nineteen years of age on July 1, 1916, may enter the contest and compete for the calf offered in the county where he lives. By entering the contest he will also be eligible to other prizes offered in regular county and state contests and special exhibits.

The contest will be decided on the same basis of award as used by the United States Department of Agriculture for field corn contest in the Agricultural Club Work. The scale of points used is as follows:

Censoring Army News

Since the beginning of the foreign war the people of this country have read a great deal about the censoring of news from the fields of operation, and many have been thoughtless enough to imagine that this was a mere exercise of autocratic power with no sufficient reasons behind it. But now that the American troops are after Villa in Mexico the necessity of censorship comes home and is to be exercised as vigorously by those in command as it is in the foreign fields.

When one considers the situation calmly he does not have to think twice to understand the propriety and value of such action. It is taken not for the purpose of keeping legitimate news from the American people, but to keep from the enemy intelligence that might be highly advantageous to Villa, his followers and sympathizers, and exceedingly detrimental to the troops on his trail.

For this reason the powers of censorship possessed by the army will be exercised to the fullest extent necessary. The number of correspondents allowed to accompany the soldiers is limited, though provision is made for serving all the news associations. The correspondents must be properly vouched for and will be given all the latitude that it is safe to give them, but bounds are prescribed beyond which they must not go, and any infringement of the rules will mean expulsion from the field, followed by arrest in case of grievous offenses.

In addition to the censoring of all newspaper dispatches private communications of all kinds will be subject to inspection by the censors. A soldier writing home might unintentionally convey information which, reaching the fleeing bandits, would thwart the plans of their pursuers, and so the bars must be kept closed all along the line against the leakage of intelligence the dissemination of which would seriously hamper the operations of the American troops.

No fault will be found with this necessary course. The results of the campaign will be promptly published in the newspapers of the country, but these will not be permitted to jeopardize the success of the expedition by premature publication of the plans of operation. This is as it should be, and it is quite safe to assume that the newspapers and correspondents, and the public as well, will accept the situation without complaint and in the hope that the necessity of field operations and censorship will come to a speedy end.

Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane is going to give the country an exposition of "safety first" as it is being promoted by the federal government. Exhibits of what the government has provided for the promotion of "safety first" are to be placed upon an all steel train and sent all over the country to show the people what is being done and to enlist their co-operation in the effort to conserve life and property. It will cost money to do this, but if the people take the interest they should the enterprise should be worth more than the cost.

Applications for the pardon of criminals are pouring in upon President Wilson in increasing numbers. He is receiving more such applications than did Roosevelt or Taft, which evidences a drift that should be carefully watched. This country should not go too fast or too far in the liberation of convicted criminals, as it sometimes seems to be in danger of doing. Clemency is all right in its place, but it is just as capable of being abused as any other good thing.

A man who has been employed as a shoe salesman practically all his life says the average size of women's feet is larger than it was forty years ago, and this he attributes to the athletic tendencies of women today. It is to be hoped that this simple observation will not check the tendency to athletics among the fair sex, even though healthful physical exercise may expand the underpinning of the human form to some slight extent.

There is only one year's time between Henry Ford of Detroit and the dean of St. Paul's in London. The former was going to have the soldiers out of the trenches before last Christmas and the latter is going to have them out before next Christmas. It is to be hoped that the dean's prediction will pan out better than that of the millionaire manufacturer.

Many stores are having their spring openings, and it would be very agreeable to suffering humanity if spring itself would have one.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT FOR GOOD SEASON

Despite Loss of the Marshall House, York Is Looking Forward to Fine Summer Business

Despite the present cold weather, prospects of the coming summer are beginning to occupy the thoughts of residents in this section. The loss of the Marshall House will be felt at York, but on the other hand it will have a tendency to help the other hotels. The Emerson, which has been used as an annex to the Marshall House will have an addition of a dining room and quite a few of the regular guests at this Mitchell house will probably be accommodated there. Families looking for cottages have begun to put in an appearance.

Another help to the summer business will be the fact that York will continue to be the health department, and also purchase from the chemical engineers, this last being an excellent assurance that the town intends to give protection to the property here owned by non-residents. The health department is in answer to the demand of the summer people and they appreciate it.

The state figures that the summer will be the largest in the history of tourist business ever enjoyed. This will be brought about through the excellent roads and York is in a strategic position as regards this from the fact that we are on the main artery of travel into the state. Our main roads are in first class shape, or will be after the highway department makes the usual repairs this spring.

The natural attractions of York remind the same, but the artificial improvements are coming all the time. At the harbor, the Corporation, now that they have sufficient funds, are beginning a series of improvements that will help that part of the town greatly. The first of the sidewalks was the building of the sidewalks to and over the railroad bridge. This will be completed and opened long before the first guests arrive.

All in all, the prospects for a good season are fine and with the right kind of weather there seems no reason why York shouldn't enjoy a good business during 1916.

THE GREAT BOSTON FIRE.

Quotations by Thos. E. O. Marvin, from Murdock's "The Great Boston Fire." Houghton-Mifflin Company, Boston and New York, 1905.

Letters written by a gentleman in Boston to his friend in Paris, France, describing the Great Boston Fire with introductory chapters and notes by Harold Murdock, with illustrations.

(Page 54)—Chief Engineer Barrett dispatched a messenger to the Western Union office in State street to telegraph for help to every town within a radius of fifty miles. (Page 159)—The closing of the telegraph offices throughout New England in the early evening was a serious handicap to the Boston authorities. Lowell, Salem, Beverly, even Newburyport and other nearby cities received no call for aid. Mayor Thomas E. O. Marvin of Portsmouth, N. H., received a midnight call via the telegraph office of the E. & N. R. by courtesy of Gen. (Manager) Hatch. The Mayor responded promptly by coming on a special train furnished by the Eastern R. R. bringing the steam fire engine Kearsarge, a reel of hose, and forty other veteran firemen.

(Page 69)—Fire brands were driving about in every direction, huge, blazing fragments, falling all over the streets and on the tops of the buildings.

(Page 90)—"It was fortunate that we had so many out-of-town fire companies here, for the city firemen were beaten out to a point of absolute exhaustion."

(Page 104)—"I made my way to Beacon Hill and found Maria waiting patiently. She was in a really alarmed and fearful state. She had seen in the Herald that the militia was to be called out and she was dreading that Fred would have to buckle on his armor and

CURRENT OPINION

Seamen's Law Put an End to Privileges of Foreign Shipowners.

The American merchant marine has been dying from two diseases. The first is that, according to the shipping men themselves, it cost 33 per cent more to build a ship in an American yard than on the Clyde. The second trouble has been that the foreign ship could be operated at less cost than the American. Fuel, food for the crew and so on cost the same in American and foreign operation of ships, but there was a difference in the wages.

Through the seamen's bill the foreign shipowners now must pay his crew as much as the American shipowner does.

The bill puts an end to a privilege long held by foreign owners, who could call upon our police in an American port to arrest and detain any or all of a cheaply paid crew which upon arriving here might decide to quit the ship.

What is most needed still in maritime legislation is a law compelling the owners to have boats enough to carry from a sinking ship every person and more safety appliances in general.—By Andrew Furuseth, President of the International Seamen's Union.

good could come of that was not clear to me nor to the engineers, but they were getting the hose away and preparing for a smash. Wagons were backed up to the Transcript office, for the removal of stock, I suppose, but the drivers whipped up and got out of the way, too.

(Page 32)—"I went down through Spring Lane into Devonshire street. Devonshire street beyond Milk street was all ablaze. I understand they blew it all to bits before the fire came in."

(Page 94)—"When I saw the sailors on the navy yard desert their steamer and run away at the report that the fuse was lighted in a building a few doors away from where they stood, I made up my mind that matters were getting serious. I came up through State street and people were getting anxious there."

(Page 97)—"It was not until I had passed up by School street by Washington from State, that I realized daylight had come. The Transcript building was all burnt out, but the walls were standing and the flames still flickered in the windows. Where I had left the powder blowers, a single steamer was sending up a black smoke column that was smothered against the fiery glow beyond. They were driving her hard, and as she quivered and roared she seemed pitted against a world aflame."

"The Old South had evidently been through a drenching, and as I stepped across to ask the engineer where he hailed from I read 'Kearsarge, Portsmouth, N. H., on the boiler-plate."

(Page 98)—"Do you know I gave me the sort of thrill that I haven't felt since the first year of the war. At that minute Portsmouth seemed remote to me than Timbuctoo, and if the engine had come from my moon, it would hardly have produced a stronger impression. A tall fellow standing near me who claimed to have been 'raised down Portsmouth' said that the Kearsarge had come (down School street from a reservoir on Court Square) in the very nick of time. Two or three streams were playing from Washington street when a brand from the Transcript building blew across and lodged in the battery. The slits were soon smoking, the streams from the engines fell short and there were no ladders at hand. As the Kearsarge came up Washington street (from School street) hot fires were lit, steam was up, and the men reeled off the hose with a will. There was great excitement in the crowd when the first water came at the nozzle, and as the stream soared higher and higher men fairly stood on tiptoe. Then the water broke through the slits and did not wait the fire."

(Page 60)—"The Old South was saved and the fire was held at Milk street on the line between Devonshire and Washington streets. It was finally brought under control in Congress and Kilby streets."

(Page 96)—"It was fortunate that we had so many out-of-town fire companies here, for the city firemen were beaten out to a point of absolute exhaustion."

(Page 104)—"I made my way to Beacon Hill and found Maria waiting patiently. She was in a really alarmed and fearful state. She had seen in the Herald that the militia was to be called out and she was dreading that Fred would have to buckle on his armor and marsh with the Ancients.

(Page 100)—"I told her some of the things I have described to you, and enlarged upon the Kearsarge episode. She thought it splendid to think of that company coming so far and doing so much. And it was inspiring to think of all those brave fellows coming from great distances to save the city, etc."

(Pages 103 and 109)—"We decided to go to the Parker House for a bite of lunch and turning from Washington into School found the Kearsarge steamer still humming away in front of the Old South, a sight that delighted Maria's heart."

(Page 100)—"As an instance of the alacrity with which assistance came even from great distances we would here mention the appearance early Sunday morning of steam fire engine Kearsarge of Portsmouth, N. H., fully manned and accompanied by the Mayor of that city. It was stationed at once near the Transcript building where for many hours it was worked with unwearied efficiency."—Boston Transcript.

"To hear that everyone is claiming the credit of having 'saved' the church, but I shall stand by the 'Kearsarge' of Portsmouth, N. H."

(Page 132)—"Of course one hears criticisms of everybody who took a hand in trying to stay the fire. Men who snored in their beds while the flames were raging, now tell us how easily the destruction might have been stopped."

"I have said some things myself about the powder men, and yet I must admit that they acted bravely and risked their lives for the public good. A dozen firemen lost their lives, and most of these were from out-of-town."

Satire and Sarcasm.

In "A Modern Columbus," by R. G. Knowles, is this bonnet:

"At a table in the Lamb's club, New York, one evening satire and sarcasm became the subjects of severe criticism among the assembled wisecracks, and the discussion entailed some heated remarks, when the late Charlie Hoyt, leaning over, quietly and unostentatiously drew out a definition and comparison of both that engendered considerable thinking on the part of his listeners and ended the argument. 'Satire,' he said, 'is like the prick of a needle, but sarcasm is a blow from the fist.' George Marlon, my host on that occasion, asked: 'Well, then, what is wit and humor?' To which Hoyt replied, 'The plaster that heals the wounds caused by the other two.'"

Wisdom and Silence.

An acquaintance of the late Josh Billings was one day talking with him about the remarkable increase of intellects and substitutes for original articles, as oleomargarine for butter, celluloid for ivory, and so forth. "And," said he, "many of the substitutes go ahead of the real thing. I guess in time there will be a substitute for everything—though I don't know about wisdom."

"No," replied the humorist; "up to the present time, at least, there is no really good substitute for wisdom. But silence is the best that has been discovered."

"There are many tempting ways of serving dates besides plain and as a sweet. Use them as a filling for sandwiches. Make two cups of dates, put them through a meat chopper, then add a cup of peanut butter and blend them together. Then spread the paste between slices of white bread."

Another woman also uses dates in baked custard, in tapioca and as filling for cookies, pies and cakes. Mixed with apples, celery and nuts they make a delicious salad. To use dates as a pudding cooked with rice, add to a quart of milk a cup of stoned dates and a quarter of a cup of rice. Sweeten and bake in a slow oven.

Cook keeps in her cold closet an assortment of pastes and butters that are used so much in preparing relishes for the table, after dinner suppers and bridge parties. She has them ready in small, labeled glass jars and tins and sauces can be made at a moment's notice. Here are a few of her best recipes:

Sardine Butter.—Rinse sardines and boneless sardines to a paste and then gradually blend. A little lemon juice may be added to butter to give it very desirable sandwich flavors. Orange butter, for afternoon tea, sandwiches can be mixed with chopped nuts and figs or any other sweet filling. Grated orange rind may flavor the butter.

Olives may be ground in a vegetable chopper, mashed to a paste and creamed into butter. Capers are chopped and creamed with butter, and either of these can be used on broiled chops or beefsteaks, as sandwich butters or on green peas or string beans to improve the flavor.

Make Your Own Fernery.

You can have success with grapefruit seeds by taking a few precautions. When planting these seeds do not keep any that have been cut. Then, before planting, the seeds should be soaked for one day or at least half a day. Fill the receptacle up to within three-quarters of an inch of the top with dirt mixed with a little sand, on which place the seeds so thickly that no soil can be seen. Then cover with dirt and keep in a warm, sunny place, wetting with warm water, but not too wet. The seeds sprout in about five weeks. They are both beautiful and hardy and need practically no attention.

Prune Gelatin.

One heaping tablespoonful of powdered gelatin, two cups of water, half a pound of good prunes, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and the strained juice of one orange are required for this dish. Take the stones out of the prunes after soaking them. Cut the prunes in halves, put them into a saucepan with the water and sugar and cook very slowly until soft; then add the gelatin, first dissolving it in hot water, and the orange juice. Pour into a wet ring mold. When set serve with whipped and sweetened cream in the center. Decorate with lady fingers.

FORMER CATCHER FOR P. A. C. DEAD IN WEST

Was the Twirler in Famous Battery of Priest and Donovan.

Fred Donovan, a former catcher of the P. A. C. baseball team, is dead at Springfield, Ill.

Donovan was well known in this section, especially in athletic circles. On the only of the P. A. C. in the baseball world, he played the speedy pitcher, Jack Frost, and was the club's backstop until the organization team was disbanded.

After leaving this city he played with several of the New England league teams and at one time was a member of the Cleveland club. He was a native of Springfield where two brothers and two sisters survive him.

INMATE CUTS THROAT WITH A RAZOR

James Pendergast, aged 65, years, an inmate of the Stratford county farm, attempted suicide recently by cutting his throat with a razor.

Mr. Pendergast was found in his room with the blood flowing freely from an ugly wound in the throat which had been self-inflicted. He was in a very weakened condition from the loss of blood. County Physician Stokes of Rochester was called to attend Pendergast and it required several stitches to close the gash he had inflicted with the razor. The wound was very close to the wind pipe. The attending physician was of the opinion that he would recover unless something new set in.

Pendergast, it is said, is credited with going to the farm from Dover and he has been an inmate there for more than five years. Despond the cause assigned for his attempt to end his life.

THE DEALER'S VIEWPOINT.

Frequently a newspaper is asked to induce local merchants to co-operate with some manufacturer's general advertising. It would get a reply something like this if it attempted to comply:

"I have built my business and individualized my store through newspaper advertising. You say newspaper advertising is good; I know it is good. Why don't this manufacturer spend his money where his newspaper advertising will create a direct demand over my counters for the product?"

The local dealer is glad to co-operate with the manufacturer's advertising when it appears in the newspapers of his city.

All schools in town commence their Spring term on Monday, out of town teachers arriving in town on Sunday. Mrs. Knick, mother of Miss H. A. Dingle, has been confined to her room a number of weeks owing to the severe weather.

The Eliot post office will shortly be moved to its former location, the store just across from the depot.

Charles Downing, former agent at 1201, Depot, is acting agent at Sawyers, N. H.

Lovers of music in Eliot, regret that owing to the bad weather, Miss Hartford has been obliged to postpone her song recital until some time in April. Mrs. C. R. Bartlett has been confined to the house the past two weeks with the grippe.

Roads in town are almost impassable owing to the many severe snow storms, the telephone lines and electric light wires doing well to continue in service during such stormy times and heavy snow, while the tides in the river are exceedingly high.

Eliot's rural mail carrier, Mr. Raymond Fernald desires quick credit for maintaining his mail route during the severe weather as he has a number of miles to travel through roads almost impassable in all kinds of weather.

Mrs. James Flynn is reported quite ill at her home.

Mrs. Charles Latham is reported as being in very poor health.

Miss Martha Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hill, is still quite ill with pneumonia.

Miss Lucy Fernald attended the wedding of Miss Anna Staples and Mr. Haywood Bundy on Thursday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Howard Bundy. Miss Staples is an Eliot girl and has the best wishes of all her Eliot friends for her future happiness.

The Portsmouth Herald sent to some absent son or daughter of Portsmouth, makes a very acceptable gift.

Will Meet Bob Everhart in a Return Match in This City at an Early Date

The challenge of Bob Everhart for a return match with Bill Dryden in this city, published in this paper a week ago, has been accepted by the Portsmouth wrestler and the match will be staged within a few weeks, probably in the Portsmouth Theatre. Bill is ready to meet all the conditions named by the Brooklyn wrestler, and is willing to go, him one better. The conditions will be the same as their previous matches, with the exception that the winner will take all. On top of this, Bill Dryden has offered his opponent for the match-honors, that he will post a substantial side bet to add to the interest, and an assurance to the fans that the match is going to be on the level.

This meeting will be the fourth session for these two men. In the first, Everhart, a much younger man, than at present, defeated Dryden after breaking his shoulder. In the second, Everhart won again, taking the first and third falls, Dryden winning the second. In the last meeting, a few weeks ago in this city, Dryden succeeded in winning in straight falls.

Bob Everhart has claimed that he was not in good condition at the last meeting and thinks that he can still show the Portsmouth wrestler a few points, as old as he is. That Bill isn't at all afraid of him is shown by his willingness to accept the conditions that winner take all. Bill is a man who is unflinchingly unbeatable at his weight. He has strength to waste, and what is more to the point, he is far more experienced than he was when the two men first got together.

The fans are in for a lot of action, if Everhart, as he claims, was out of condition at the last meeting. He will be as perfect as he can be at the match to be staged in a few weeks. It means everything to him as he is no longer a young man. It means as much to Dryden, to win, Bill never taking kindly to a defeat at the hands of any of them.

There will be nothing framed up and the best match for many a night will be seen by the followers of the game when Dryden and Everhart climb onto the mat.

Keep in mind "The Dutch Party" at Westworth hall, Friday evening, March 31st.

Marriages in town are becoming frequent. Now for the third. Who will it be?

The Burke C. L. Perkins, No. 6, which has been laid up at Locke's Cove all winter, was towed to Portsmouth on Thursday by a tug.

Mrs. S. F. Staples of Eliot was in town to attend the wedding of her daughter, Miss Mamma Staples, to Mr. Haywood G. Bundy on Thursday evening.

A young man belonging to a local milkman met with an accident on Thursday at Locke's Cove, which caused quite a bit of amusement for residents in that vicinity. It seems that the vehicle has met with similar accidents several times before, but instead of repairing it, ropes were used to tie the broken parts together. On Thursday while crossing the rope to break, and naturally the broken piece just dropped apart in a heap. It was still beside the road last night.

The Dutch will capture Westworth hall Friday evening, March 31. Be there and enjoy a pleasant evening.

A fine entertainment is being prepared by the committee on the Dutch party for Friday evening, March 31.

Mr. James R. Philbrick of Whitipple road is greatly improved from his illness of four months past. His many friends are pleased to know that he is better, and look for a recovery to health.

Jethro H. Swett of Hingers road is improving slowly from a recent attack of grippe.

Several candidates are to be received tonight at Kittery Grange, No. 395.

Mrs. Leslie Corbin and young son, William, visited relatives in Portsmouth on Thursday.

Mrs. Lucy A. Lutz of Rogers road recently observed her 92d birthday.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gerry has been ill at his home on Rogers road.

Vocal and instrumental music at 8 o'clock meeting, March 26, also readings, remarks, etc. Praise service, monthly missionary service, offering for missions will be collected as usual.

Word was received of the death of the infant of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fernald of Portland. Mrs. Fernald formerly resided here with her mother, Mrs. Martha G. Fernald of Love lane. The body will be interred in Orlend Grove cemetery today.

The meeting of the Juvenile Temple, I. O. G. T., postponed from Wednesday, March 22, was held this afternoon at Grange hall.

The Union Rescue Mission of Boston has communicated with the Jo-nal hospital relative to Harry Graham who was brought there a week ago after being picked up on the street evidently suffering from heart trouble, and who left the institution under queer circumstances the following day.

The Mission was requested to hunt up the man as the result of his failure to attend a meeting at Worcester and the report in the Boston paper regarding his troubles in Portsmouth.

ELIOT GIRL BECOMES BRIDE

Bundy-Staples Nuptials Take Place at Home of Bride's Sister.

The marriage of Miss Mamma J. Staples of Eliot, to Mr. Haywood G. Bundy of Elizabeth City, North Carolina, occurred at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Howard Bundy on Prince's avenue, Kittery.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. William M. Fargnare, pastor of the Government Street Methodist church, Kittery. In the presence of a few relatives and immediate friends, the single ring service being used. The room was prettily decorated with evergreen and white, and beneath an evergreen arch the ceremony took place.

The couple were attended by Miss Lucy M. Fernald of Eliot, as bridesmaid, and Mr. Charles C. Kimble of Kittery, as best man. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of white voile, and wore a necklace of pearls. The bridesmaid's dress was of white crepe de chine.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and a collation of sandwiches, olives, ice cream and cake was served. The bride couple received many beautiful wedding gifts of silverware, glass and linen which were on view at this time.

For the present they will reside with the bride's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bundy of Kittery, but later will go south where they will make their home.

Both are very popular and have many friends who unite in wishing them a long and happy married life.

TOWN NEARLY WIPED OUT

Fort Fairfield, Me., Suffers by Big Morning Fire.

Houlton, Me., March 24.—A fire which originated in a drug store in Fort Fairfield early today came near wiping out the town. A gale was blowing and many buildings caught fire. The loss is about $15,000.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as common as it is, however, behind a certain amount of inconceivable material in the form of ashes so the food and drink taken each day leaves in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated from toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to such in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste materials and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skin, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, indigestion, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but it is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that inside sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowels do.

LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON

Nineteen Seniors of York High School Off for Seven-Day Trip.

Nineteen members of the Senior class of the York High school accompanied by their chaperones, left Friday afternoon on the 1.45 o'clock train from Boston whence they will proceed to Washington, D. C. on a seven days' trip.

MIRACLE BALKS BRITISH ARTILLERY IN ARABIA

Shelkhih, Arabia, March 23.—The ground between the Tigris river and the hills was the scene of the battle of Shelkhih. The land is impassably and fantastically sterile. Even the agone and the kharnook, which is an end, it was over this ground that the transport wagons bumped and jolted with their freight of wounded on the evening of January 17th last.

It was evening when our steamer pulled near the battlefield. We went out to meet them as they streamed in over the mud-colored flat. And gave what aid we could. Many of them were walking very erect some of them with much effort. These were the less serious cases. The stretchers and transport wagons came in later. One was struck with the hardness and suddenness of the British and Indian attack.

"Beg your pardon sir," says a British private, "can you tell me where the ambulance is?" and he approached the support of my shoulder, though his calf is bandaged and it is painful for him to put his left foot to the ground. "I'm all right sir, it's nothing serious."

He lifts up his shirt and points to a puncture in his stomach. His face is bloody and bandaged.

He will not rest but moves on toward the distant Red Cross flag and the funnels of the steamer on the river. Here at least he should rest, warm and comfort for his wounds. But in Mesopotamia it is a far cry to the smooth motor ambulances of France, the rapid transit to the hospital where an hour or two afterwards he has received first aid, doctors and nurses are ready with every saving device that science can provide.

We have heard the guns overnight and again in the morning as our band die steamer with its attendant leaders forged up stream. The first shell which turned a flight of sand geese which came wheeling across the river, such myriads that we who were watching from the roof of the bridge forgot the shells and turned our glasses on the birds—a skein of plumage half a mile long lying itself up in loops in the most complicated evolutions, the van suddenly wheeling around while the rear, an opposite point, the body verged in a hoop. They were dark at one time, silvery the next, as the sun caught their whirling through the black smoke of a monitor.

The evolutions of our troops on land.

were obscured by the mirage. We saw infantry like trees moving, and saw thought them a transport train. Other masses which could be nothing but artillery crossed the position. Bridge ahead of us from the right bank to the left. The mirage does not affect the atmosphere at the height of a bird's wing; we could see the shrapnel smoke unfolding two or three miles from the bank and wondered if it were Turkish artillery or our own. Spoiling their advance posts, was the general verdict. It was not until later that we realized that the whole force was at grips with the enemy, and it was not until we observed and noted the converging stream coming in from the trenches that we realized how costly the day had been. The ground we had cleared had played, but a small part in the action, for the mirage had made our preparation for our advance, and the bulk of our casualties on both banks of the stream had occurred in frontal attacks on the enemy's position.

DETECTIVES FIND DOCTOR DRUGGED

New York, March 23.—Detectives sent today to arrest Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, in connection with the death of John E. Peck, millionaire druggist of Grand Rapids, Mich., found him in a condition of stupor as a result of an opiate, self-administered. Physicians at noon today were working on him to save his life.

Dist. Atty. Swann soon after that hour arrived at Dr. Waite's apartment and went in, accompanied by a stenographer. It was given out that Dr. Waite had taken the opiate to induce sleep and it was believed that he would recover.

Dist. Atty. Swann emerging from Dr. Waite's apartment shortly before 2 o'clock, made this announcement: "I shall charge Dr. Waite with murder in the first degree."

Detective Cuniff was commissioned to bring Waite in. The order was given, it is understood, after a statement had been made to Swann's secretary by a colored maid.

After the order for the arrest of Dr. Waite, John B. Stenfield, acting as attorney for him, told the district attorney that Waite was ill and could not be removed from his apartment.

The maid is said to have told Swann secretary, Howard Foster, that the night before he died Peck drank a cup of tea shortly after he had tried to take some soup that he complained tasted bitter. According to the statement, Peck refused the soup after he had taken only a couple of spoonfuls. As soon as word was received from Grand Rapids last night that an autopsy showed arsenic poisoning Dist. Atty. Swann ordered the home of Dr. Waite guarded. Detective Cuniff and several aides were on watch there throughout the night. A high powered car stood in front of the house all night but no attempt was made to use it.

Mrs. Peck died here Jan. 30. Her husband died March 12. The deaths occurred in the apartment of their son-in-law, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, 135 Riverside Drive.

Traces of arsenic poisoning were found when Dr. Otto Schultze, for Dist. Atty. Swann, completed an autopsy on the body of Peck at Grand Rapids. Arsenic was revealed in both the stomach and brain cells of the dead man. The body of Mrs. Peck was cremated.

Peck was president of the Peck Drug Company of Grand Rapids and a director of other large corporations. His fortune was estimated at $1,500,000. After his death his son, Percy of Grand Rapids, received an anonymous telegram suggesting that he demand an autopsy.

The preliminary examination showed signs of arsenic poisoning. It is said, Dist. Atty. Swann was notified and ordered the examination which concluded yesterday. Police allege they have reports that a third poisoning was threatened in the Peck family.

Dr. Waite, the son-in-law, is 58. At high school and at the University of Michigan he made brilliant records both as a student and athlete. He holds the indoor tennis championship of New York. He married Miss Peck at Grand Rapids Sept. 9.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time remedy improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally, and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. You look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

KITTERY POINT

BIGOTRY ON BOTH SIDES

Investigator Finds Peculiar Conditions Regarding Prohibition in Maryland.

Baltimore, March 23.—Maryland will hold a referendum next fall on a drastic prohibition law. Great feeling has been aroused throughout the state. Baltimore is against prohibition very strongly.

The Baltimore Sun has just sent a special investigator into all the prohibition states, who has written a series of articles describing the workings of the anti-liquor laws.

In a summary of his findings he now appeals for more facts and less blind prejudice from both sides of the controversy. He writes in part:

"If the entire history of the prohibition movement in the United States for the last three-quarters of a century could be blotted out it would be vastly easier than it is to arrive at a satisfactory solution of the liquor problem. A visitor from Mars dropped on the earth overnight confronted with the facts concerning the liquor situation, but with no knowledge of the events leading up to it, could reach that solution much better than the ordinary or extraordinary citizen or legislator who has taken an attempt at it. For in the years that have passed since prohibition was first conceived as a remedy of the evils of intemperance, great feeling on the subject has been aroused and bias, partisanship, prejudice and bitterness have sprung up everywhere. Consequently it is almost impossible to consider the subject temperately and rationally."

"Most of the liquor men whom I met in my visit to the 'dry' states evidenced a feeling of bitterness, hostility toward the Anti-Saloon League. They say that its agents are far less concerned about reducing the evils of intemperance than about retaining their profitable jobs. They say that it is a huge political machine which terrorizes and tyrannizes over office holders and candidates for office. They say that it constitutes an extra legal agency for enforcing the law planned to exist permanently, collecting and distributing huge sums of money in order to maintain its political power. They contend that it divides communities, schemes to ostracize respectable men from society, and it is an organization of persecution and they declare that the chief reason for its successful existence is the fact that its professional paid agents find that they can make an easier living in its employ than in more worthy work. No real temperance reform, they assert, can come through an agency of this sort."

"Contravely, the prohibitionists say that they are fighting against a mercenary band intent on demoralizing the people. They argue that the saloon is a lawless institution, a breeder of disorder, crime and poverty. When they attempted to abate its evils, they declare, they found themselves fighting an ancient gang and brought up city councils, license boards and legislatures, that dominated politics and fought trickily and unscrupulously. They have been forced to adopt drastic measures because they could not cope with their antagonists in any other way."

"There is some truth in the allegations of both. But that's not the point. The important thing is that when prohibition measures are proposed, when a legislature takes up the subject the fight is always between the two superheated parties. We have the passionate arguments of one side and the passionate arguments of the other, but the side of the man not peculiarly interested either way and interested only in the best way of promoting temperance is not heard at all. The situation is very much like that which occurs when the employees of a railroad threaten a strike. The representatives of the corporation meet together and discuss and argue and bargain, each trying to get all they can for their side, while the great public which is more vitally concerned about the issue than either, is unrepresented and usually suffers whatever agreement is reached."

"The fact has most strongly been brought home to me in my trip through Georgia and North Carolina and West Virginia and Kansas that the case for and against prohibition is everywhere presented by partisans. And the average man when he is called upon to take a stand on the question, is apt to adopt the attitude of the professional 'dry' of the professional 'wet' advocate. No one is interested in giving expression to the results of unprejudiced, scientific investigation and as a consequence they are not brought to the attention of the man on the street."

To deal intelligently with the liquor traffic, a state, or its representatives, must have definite, comprehensive knowledge regarding it. What is the comparative harmfulness of spirituous wines and malt liquors? Do light beers and light wines constitute such a menace to society that their use should be prohibited? Norway, Sweden and Denmark exempt from taxes beers containing 2.25 per cent of alcohol, on the theory that they are relatively harmless and that their use discourages the use of stronger beverages. Is this theory a good one or is it not, and will it be useful in this country? Is the local option idea a good one? If so, how should the units in local option elections be defined? Should urban communities be allowed to settle the question for themselves, irrespective of the preferences of the surrounding rural territories? It has been found that prohibitory laws cannot be well enforced in communities where the prevailing sentiment is against their enforcement. Would it not be well when prohibitory laws are presented to require a two-thirds of a three-fourths favorable vote of the people to make them effective. If prohibition is desirable, what kind of prohibition shall it be? Shall it be the Kansas brand, which permits individuals easily and legally to get all the liquor they want to drink from the outside, or shall it be the West Virginia variety, which while not absolutely forbidding the drinking of liquors aims to make it as difficult as possible for a man to get any?

"The wet sections of Maryland will vote this fall merely upon the bald question of whether or not the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited. But the matter will not stop there. Further prohibitory legislation is sure to be proposed. If this measure is approved by the people, the legislation will certainly be asked to adopt further measures limiting the amount of shipments into the state. That has been the experience elsewhere. In West Virginia I was told many times that the people didn't know what they were voting for when they voted in favor of the constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale and manufacture of liquor, that they thought they were voting out the saloons, the breweries and the distilleries and they found they had voted away their right to bring liquor into the state. Of course they had voted only to prohibit the manufacture and sale, but the ensuing legislation, which was not passed upon by the people, limited very sternly their ability to bring liquor into the state."

"Governor Capper told me that he believed the modern prohibition movement is the result largely of economic rather than moral influences. Railroad owners and factory owners and all employers of labor have come to believe that their employees work better when they abstain altogether from intoxicating drink, and so they have issued orders requiring total abstinence. This, the governor conceded has brought about improved conditions even in communities where the sale of liquor is licensed. Are there no useful lessons to be drawn from the fact?

"Another thing, in various sections, I met the complaint that the prohibition law is a law against the poor man. It prohibits him from drinking, but lets the rich man get all he wants. Isn't there justification for this? Is the poor man who suffers most when he gives way to his appetite for drink. The rich man's wife and children do not suffer from insufficient food and insufficient clothing because he drinks. The rich man's drunkenness rarely brings him into the police court or makes a nuisance of him on the public street. He usually has friends with him who takes care of him until he sobers up. It is the poor man who gets arrested and whose family suffers. Laws are concerned primarily with the protection of society not with individual reformation or individual justice. Isn't it right then to draw a distinction between the poor and the rich?

"If the controversies of the past with their attendant bitterness and prejudices, had been blotted out and the subject had been taken up for the first time at the present session of the Maryland legislature, we can imagine pretty well what its members would have done, assuming them to be intelligent and honest men. They would have appointed or authorized the governor to appoint a commission of sane, well informed and scientific citizens, or truth-seekers to investigate all the phases of the liquor question mentioned above and all others connected with it, so far as Maryland is concerned to report to the next legislature, and to frame a measure best adapted to meet the needs of the situation. That measure would then be submitted to the people. It is only through some such action that any legislation that will be fair and that will stand the test of time and will not produce distressing evils of its own can be enacted. No one, I take it, wants to see prohibition of a kind that will make an Atlanta or Savannah out of Baltimore. And the main question which the thoughtful voters of the Baltimore electorate will have to decide next fall is whether it would not be wiser to defer action on absolute prohibition until such a time as the subject of temperance reform can be taken up in the manner indicated."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder Bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

We are a nation of meat-eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will not ache. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in uric acid so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

PLANNING TO STOP FRANKING ABUSES

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO PUT CHECK ON CONGRESSMEN—THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS LOST TO THE GOVERNMENT.

Washington, March 23.—Abuse of the Congressional franking privilege is denounced in a report of the House Printing Committee which has included a provision in the pending revision of the printing laws designed to stop the practice. The report charges that members of Congress furnish franked envelopes to individuals, committees and organizations interested in promoting a particular propaganda at the public expense.

Millions upon millions of franked envelopes, supplied free to members of Congress for their own use, have been turned over to private organizations to conduct mail campaigns for certain purposes," the report says. "It has been no uncommon thing for some members to order several hundred thousand or even a million franked envelopes and then send the entire lot to a committee or organization having no connection whatever with the Government, for its use in the mailing of certain extracts from the Congressional Record or public documents that may also have been printed in its behalf at the expense of the Government. Such transactions have cost the Government many thousands of dollars for printing and carrying free in the mails tons of publications intended to further the special interest of certain individuals or organizations."

"The committee is of the opinion that furnishing of franked envelopes for such purposes should be declared unlawful in no uncertain terms, and that a proper penalty be attached for violations of the same. It is believed that a vigorous enforcement of the provisions of the law will result in a

"STARS" AS AN AGENT
IN BUSINESS DRAMA

PRESIDENT OF N. C. R. COMPANY
ACTS LEADING PART IN SALES-
MANSHIP PLAY.

THUS HE TEACHES NEW METH-ODS OF SELLING.

JOHN H. PATTERSON.

He is one of the most remarkable of America's big business men. As a pioneer in practical warfare work, he has won international recognition. He is 71 years old, but has the physical vigor of a man of fifty.

Dayton, Ohio, March 23.—John U. Patterson, president and general manager of the National Cash Register Company, is the "star" in a very cleverly-acted business play now being produced before audiences of salesmen.

This play, "The Evolution of a Store," is the latest plan of the National Cash Register Company for the instruction of its large sales force in new selling methods. But the most striking feature of it is, of course, the appearance of President Patterson as the "star."

The president is noted for his originality of method in all things, more especially in developing selling talent. He founded the first "school" for salesmen, and he has made "teaching by the eye" an axiom of business training.

In every N. C. R. conference, his "chalk talks" are a feature. These consist of rough sketches, hastily drawn by the president in black and colored crayon to drive home various points brought out. Throughout the cash register plant, you will find large paper tablets on easels and an abundance of crayons, and a "chalk talk" is just as likely in the shops as in the conference rooms. The president is also a strong advocate of moving pictures.

In the staging of "The Evolution of a Store," he has resorted to dramatics as an effective means of impressing, as well as interesting, his hearers. The play is based on the troubles of a storekeeper. Mr. Patterson takes the part of the cash register agent, and when the play had its severest try-out here recently at the National Cash Register plant, he occupied the stage for a total of three hours.

More remarkable—his "lines" were entirely impromptu, and he gave a masterly demonstration of modern salesmanship.

In the first act, he made the "approach" to a retail grocer, inviting the latter's interest and confidence by suggesting in a friendly way improvements possible in store methods. In the second act, the agent had interested the grocer in the 1916 model of the National cash register, and had also succeeded in converting the grocer's wife in favor of the proposition.

Next, the agent visited the grocer's banker and the wholesaler and "sold" them. Then, after the cash register had been installed, two acts were given to explaining "N. C. R. Service." This service, which is a feature of the company's 1916 advertising included such subjects as the training of clerks, window displays and the like.

Of course, "The Evolution of a Store" has its "happy ending"—better business for the grocer, an improved financial condition and increased home happiness.

The play affords the opportunity to Mr. Patterson to display those marvelous business traits which have made him a master of business. Both in his acting and in his "lines," he shows the supreme value of enthusiasm, sincerity, intelligence, kindness, courtesy and other factors of up-to-date salesmanship.

The play is intended for the benefit of the company's salesmen, and it will only be produced before audiences composed of salesmen brought to the plant for instruction.

CONGRESS WORKING UNDER PRESSURE

Washington, March 23.—Democrats of the House Ways and Means Committee have agreed to include in the coming general revenue revision measure the Administration tariff commission bill. They have also determined to call a caucus tomorrow night to plan for speeding up legislation, particularly the appropriation bills and revenue bills which are to follow the preparedness measures.

Sentiment at the conference was strongly in favor of steps to insure better progress on legislation in accordance with the wishes of the leaders of Congress and the desire of President Wilson that Congress adjourn before the national conventions.

A proposal recently urged by Representative Kent, Republican of California, to eliminate the emergency internal revenue tax of 55 cents a gallon on grape brandy for fortifying wines, was accepted by the Democrats for incorporation in the revenue bill. Mr. Kent has said that the prohibition of wine had been cut to one-quarter of the normal before the tax was imposed.

Philippine Export Trade Increases.

The Philippine export trade increased about $46,000,000 during 1915, reaching a total of nearly $54,000,000 for the calendar year. War prices for sugar, and the recovery of coconut, co. and hemp plantations from the disastrous typhoon of 1912 were ruling factors in the year's favorable return.

Eighty-five per cent of the year's imports, which totaled $3,641,000, came from the United States. The amount of cotton cloth sent from this country in the Philippines exceeded that exported to any foreign country, and was approximately sixteen per cent of the entire amount exported.

In the export trade the year was a banner one for copra, France taking the bulk of the increased production, and Spanish trade doubling in that staple and coconut oil. Exports of hemp increased and the sugar industry continued satisfactorily, though the closing of the Panama Canal and consequent high freight rates caused the bulk of exports to go to nearby Chinese and Japanese ports.

While the American trade in cigars slightly increased, the total export declined, owing to elimination of the European market.

Maine Lands Purchased

The National Forest Reservation Commission has announced the purchase of 47,600 acres of land comprising sixty-one tracts in the Appalachian and White Mountains. Approximately 25,000 acres lie in western Maine, contiguous to the Government's previous purchases in New Hampshire, 2000 acres in Maine and McDowell counties, North Carolina; 1200 in Shepardsville, Amherst, Augustus, and Rock Bridge counties, Va.; 900 in Polk, Carter and Union counties, Tenn.; 1000 in Hampshire and Franklin counties, Mass.; and 300 in Oconee County, S. C.)

Jump in Internal Revenue Receipts.
Internal revenue receipts from all sources in the United States during February increased more than twenty-five per cent over receipts in February 1915. A compilation just made public fixes the total at $31,616,920, an increase of $6,667,071.

More Roads for Canal Zone.
Secretary Baker has asked Congress to appropriate $127,550 for building ten store houses at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, and $46,000 for the construction and repair of roads in the Panama Canal Zone.

CHARGING PANEL FOR STORAGE BATTERY FOR THE OPERATION OF EMERGENCY LIGHTS ON PASSENGER VESSELS.

An Important Provision for Safety at Sea.
(Department of Commerce, Washington.)

Washington, D. C., March 23.—In compliance with the regulations of the Steamboat-Inspection Service of the Department of Commerce, requiring auxiliary lights, with an independent source of power, on passenger vessels, a number of such vessels at Baltimore, Md., have been equipped with emergency lights, using the emergency radio storage battery as an auxiliary source of power to operate their emergency lights. The auxiliary power furnished for the wireless telegraph is thus made to serve for emergency lighting.

In order that the storage battery shall be properly charged, a charging panel board has been designed by Radio Inspector R. Y. Cadmus of the Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, which apparently meets these requirements. The board is so equipped as to disconnect automatically the charging circuit when the battery has been charged. Should the lights be used for purposes other than emergency, the Sangamometer (the instrument used to show the amount of current put in or taken out of a storage battery) can be so set as to cut out these lights when the discharge reaches a certain point, thereby reserving the necessary emergency supply.

The board is equipped with over- and underload automatic switches to prevent excessive charging. It is simple in construction and comparatively inexpensive. Should an accident require the use of emergency lights an officer or wheelman on the bridge throws one switch or presses a push button on the steering head of the wheel.

Emergency lights are placed in the main passageways; in the passageways leading to the staterooms; over the doors leading to the decks, on the stairways leading to the lifeboat decks; on the boat deck in immediate vicinity of lifeboats, and rafts, and the auxiliary current is also connected with the signal lights of the vessel.

The above lights are arranged on three circuits, one for each deck, leading to the charging panel. These circuits consist of two parallel wires run through a lead cable. Should one of the lamps get broken the circuit is not interrupted. On the freight deck three-ampere fuses are used; on the passenger deck five-ampere fuses are used; and on the boat deck ten-ampere fuses are used. In the event of an accident should the water reach the freight deck circuit the lower fuses will blow, allowing the lights on the upper decks to remain lighted.

These auxiliary lights can be so placed as to illuminate the lifeboats, so that in case of accident light is provided to the last where most needed.

CATCH ESCAPING PRISONERS.

Berlin, March 23.—Captain George Berniche and Martin Percy-Levi, an aviator, escaped from the camp of prisoners in Hann-Munden, but have now been detected and captured while riding fourth-class on a train near Osnabruck, disguised in rags.

Arthur Eaton, a former employee at the navy yard and now employed at the Fore River Plant at Quincy, has been passing a few days in this city the guest of friends.

SAGAMORE STEAM FIRE ENGINE COMPANY HOSTS TO OVER FIFTY GUESTS AT THE STATION.

With the officers of all the fire companies, the chief engineer and his assistants, the members of the committee on fire department of the City Council and others to the number of fifty, the Sagamore Steam Fire Engine Company entertained at the engine house on Bartlett street last evening with music and a banquet in honor of the sixteenth anniversary of the organization of the company. The entertainment was well planned and the company kept open house, doing all possible to make things pleasant for their guests. The dinner was catered for and served under the direction of Frank Leary and the menu included roast turkey, mashed potatoes, squash, green peas, cranberry jelly, pies, ice cream, cakes, coffee and cigars. The committee in charge of the anniversary was Captain Leary, J. L. Daniel Scott and Dennis Kelley.

GIRLS! MOISTEN A CLOTH AND DRAW IT THROUGH HAIR

It becomes beautifully soft, wavy, abundant and glossy at once.

Save your hair! All dandruff goes and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Dandergine Hair Cleanser" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Dandergine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Dandergine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Dandergine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandergine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Save your hair! Keep it looking charming and beautiful. You will say this was the best 25 cents you ever spent.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Anna M. Sherman.
Mrs. Anna M. Sherman, wife of Anson M. Sherman, a well known resident of Haverhill, died at the City Hospital on Tuesday, after a brief illness of pneumonia aged 56 years, three months and 26 days. She was born in North Haverhill, Me., but had lived in Haverhill more than 20 years and had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who will grieve to learn of her death.

She was a member of the City Hospital Aid association and was very active in its work. She was also identified with Haverhill grange, P. O. of H., and the Riverside Helping Hand society. Although not a member, she was greatly interested in the work of the Association much of her assistance. She was an attendant of the Universalist church and was very active in anything connected with its welfare.

Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Ethel L. Graham, a son Leroy A. Sherman, three grandchildren one brother, George B. Libbey of North Haverhill, Me., and three sisters, Miss Carrie Libbey and Mrs. Harriet E. Moody of Lynn and Mrs. James Seavey of Pittsfield.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family home, 39 Lincoln avenue. Relatives and friends invited. Burial in Pine Grove cemetery in Lynn.

SAVES A BOY FROM DROWNING

George Murch in Timely Rescue on Waterfront.

George Murch, a mate on the tug Piscataqua, made a timely rescue on Wednesday of a small boy at the landing of the steamer Queen City off Market street. The boy, in company with another lad was playing about the float and accidentally went into the river. Murch, who was aboard the tug at another wharf, heard the cries of the boy in the water and the one on the float. He rushed to the dock but once at home, and that time by hard work managed to get the boy out of the water. The boy was much frightened by his cold bath and as soon as he got his feet on the float he continued his howling and putting on lots of speed he did a marathon on the gangway and across the wharf to the street, with the other kid a close second.
 The boy doesn't know who saved his life, and the mate doesn't know the name of the kid that took the plunge.

THE HERALD HEARS

That State Detective Fred A. Tarbox of Hallowell, police, former chief of police of Hallowell, and well known in this city, had a queer experience on Tuesday last.
 That the detective was exhibiting his famous collection of 3000 cards among which was a variety of hand-cuffs.
 That he insisted on handcuffing himself to show how the frons worked.
 That his wife pleaded with him not to lock his hands but he insisted on doing so.
 That when he wanted to take the handcuffs off the key could not be found.
 That he had left it in his coat pocket and the coat was in his office in Hallowell.
 That his wife was obliged to drive him several miles shackled to get the key with which to release him.
 That fishermen at Portland are reaping a harvest on flounders.
 That two of them have earned nearly $1,000 within three months spending and hooking up the flat fish.
 That the State street dog that raided the candy shop still has a sweet tooth.
 That he still hangs out in the doorway of the Penikese street shop waiting for his share of candy from every kid that makes a purchase.
 That the Little Bowers Association, which will later put on a minstrel show are to have rehearsals in music hall.
 That the steam roller certainly had some pressure on Thursday night.
 That the Coast Guard men at Wood Island did a good bit of work in the rescue of the crew of the schooner Home.
